

Chunking Worksheet: What is a community?

Communities are not built of friends, or of groups with similar styles and tastes, or even of people who like and understand each other. They are built of people who feel they are part of something that is bigger than themselves: a shared goal or enterprise, like righting a wrong, or building a road, or raising children, or living honorably, or worshipping a god. To build community requires only the ability to see value in others, to look at them and see a potential partner in one's enterprise.

—Suzanne Goldsmith, author

What does this sentence or phrase mean?

Rewrite the main ideas in your own words.

Communities are not built of friends, or of groups with similar styles and tastes, or even of people who like and understand each other.
They are built of people who feel they are part of something that is bigger than themselves . . .
. . . a shared goal or enterprise, like righting a wrong, or building a road, or raising children, or living honorably, or worshipping a god.
To build community requires only the ability to see value in others . . .
. . . to look at them and see a potential partner in one's enterprise.	